Faith Leaders Commitment to Young Children

Our faith calls us to ensure that each child is given the best opportunity to realize his or her potential – physical, mental, emotional, spiritual, moral and social – in a loving environment.

We call on our state and our communities to support public and private investments in policies and programs that recognize that children need good health, strong families and high quality early learning experiences during their early years to be most successful in school and in life.

In the words of the Global Network of Religions for Children, "It is a moral obligation for us to provide an environment that enables children to fully explore their innate potential with human dignity."
